

Miro Bronzić is one of the founders and the secretary of the Šipan Film School association, which has been successfully organizing Šipan Summer Film School project for the past twenty-two years. He has cultivated his love for media and audiovisual creativity since his high school days, when he was the editor-in-chief of the school newspaper and tried his hand at the non-professional field of music production. He has been more seriously involved in non-professional film and video since 2004, when he launched the Šipan Summer Film School project together with Nils Neubert. He further improved his knowledge, skills and competences in this area at the Media Culture Schools organized by the Croatian Film Association, as well as by working with and assisting the professionals in domestic film production as part of the Šipan Summer Film School workshops. He also actively participates in the organization of DUFF - Dubrovnik International Film Festival for Children and Youth from Mediterranean Countries, along with Kinematografi Dubrovnik and the Luža Association, as a technical director. As an external collaborator and currently a member of the Supervisory Board of the Croatian Film Association, he often travels to international film festivals and events related to children's and youth creativity, where he represents the associations and Croatian festivals. He is a proud husband and father of two sons, and when he is not working in a student dormitory or producing events, he promotes volunteerism and humanitarian work.
